

Slaves Romans 6:16

Do you not know that if you present yourselves to anyone as obedient slaves, you are slaves of the one whom you obey, either of sin, which leads to death, or of obedience, which leads to righteousness?

From Joshua to Solomon, God's united people entered and flourished in the Promised Land

Overview

Joshua: In the days after Moses, a new leader would guide God's people faithfully and courageously into the land the Lord had promised.

Ruth: During the days of Judges, the people repeatedly turned their hearts away from the Lord. Yet amid the darkness, stories of grace, such as Ruth's, resonate and foreshadow God's great offer of mercy to the Gentiles.

The Last Judge and First King: Samuel was the last of Israel's judges and God's answer to a childless woman's prayer. Amid the people's rebellion, God called on Samuel to anoint Saul as Israel's first king.

David: A great warrior as well as a beautiful poet, David became Israel's anointed champion. More important, he would be the integral ancestor to the divine King to come, the Lord Jesus Christ.

Solomon: With God's gift of wisdom, David's son ruled a peaceful, prosperous nation. He had the great privilege of building the temple in Jerusalem. But Solomon's wayward ways later in life would set the stage for the nation's division to come. The subsequent divided kingdom will be covered in People of the Promised Land II.

Provision

By God's design, Israel marched to conquer Canaan with no allies in battle. The Lord alone would give His people success.

Leadership

Whether conquering a new land or leading a diverse nation, God anoints leaders to guide His people in His will.

Holiness

God calls His people to be distinct from the ways and means of the world.

Faithfulness

Sin is infectious, and God's people are not immune to rebellion as they turn to their own ways. Yet God remains faithful to His own. And through mercy and admonishment, He shepherds His people into a deeper relationship with Him.
